CURRICULUM PATHWAYS

With the introduction of the EBacc (a programme of study consisting of English, maths, a science, a language and a humanity), and a government target that $75 \%$ of students should study a language, having four options is all the more important. The majority of our students will be expected to have one option as either history or geography and a second option as a language. This then leaves two free options choices.

This is not suitable for all students and there is some flexibility with regard to the EBacc and languages. This is summarised in the table below:

| Path | $\begin{array}{c}\text { Path One } \\ \text { (Default) }\end{array}$ | $\begin{array}{c}\text { Path Two } \\ \text { (By agreement) }\end{array}$ | $\begin{array}{c}\text { Path Three } \\ \text { (By agreement) }\end{array}$ |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
| Student route | $\begin{array}{l}\text { Students who wish to } \\ \text { follow a more academic } \\ \text { path of A-Levels } \\ \text { followed by university. } \\ \text { This pathway maintains } \\ \text { access to all career } \\ \text { paths. }\end{array}$ | $\begin{array}{l}\text { Students whose } \\ \text { career path is } \\ \text { supported by } \\ \text { vocational options. } \\ \text { At the end of key } \\ \text { stage 4, they would } \\ \text { consider a vocational } \\ \text { course or work- } \\ \text { related learning. }\end{array}$ | $\begin{array}{l}\text { Students who have } \\ \text { additional needs for } \\ \text { whom four options } \\ \text { may create a work } \\ \text { overload. }\end{array}$ |
| $\begin{array}{l}\text { Options } \\ \text { available }\end{array}$ | $\begin{array}{l}\text { Students must pick } \\ \text { Geography or History } \\ \text { (or both), a language } \\ \text { and then have two free } \\ \text { choices. }\end{array}$ | $\begin{array}{l}\text { This path must be } \\ \text { agreed by the } \\ \text { student's Form Tutor. } \\ \text { Students must still } \\ \text { pick one EBacc } \\ \text { subject (geography, } \\ \text { history, triple science, } \\ \text { computer science, or } \\ \text { a language), a } \\ \text { vocational subject } \\ \text { and then have two } \\ \text { free choices. }\end{array}$ | $\begin{array}{l}\text { Students are invited } \\ \text { to follow this path by } \\ \text { our SENCO and } \\ \text { Head of Year. }\end{array}$ |
| Students should aim |  |  |  |
| for one EBacc |  |  |  |
| subject and then |  |  |  |
| have two free |  |  |  |
| choices. The fourth |  |  |  |
| option is supervised |  |  |  |
| study. |  |  |  |$]$

We do not determine pathways by ability. The default pathway is Path 1 . Tutors will help students who are unsure of the appropriate pathway.

